AFTER HIS SCALP.

Chairman Clarkson Goes to Washington Today to Call Mr. Harrison Off the Track.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The Herald this morning says that Chairman Clarkson went to Washington armed with the emphatic demand from the most influential republicans in the eastern, middle and western states, which are not so likely democratic, that President Harrison shall stand aside, and that Mr. Blaine shall be the candidate in the absence of Mr. Blaine from Washington, the republican chairman will go direct to President Harrison and make an appeal to him that he shall take such action as will prevent the presenting of his name at Minneapolis.

WHOLESALE STEALING.

Stockmen Shooting Cows and Branding the Calves.

DOUGLAS, Wyo., May 24.—It is reported that the small stockmen of Johnson county are shooting down on the ranches cows with calves following them and branding the calves, and that wholesale stealing of cattle is of daily occurrence. Following this comes the announcement that the United States officers on route to Fort McKinney had been held up and treated in a shameful manner. United States deputy marshals are serving injunctions against the small stockmen of Cluy Woman, who have almost completed their roundup. The county is still patrolled by armed men, and at present it would be impossible for an invading force to surprise the stockmen.

WANTED TO QUIT.

The Entire Faculty of Lawrence University Talk of Resigning.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 24.—A dispatch from Appleton to a morning paper last night states that the entire faculty of Lawrence university was on the point of resigning as the result of a disagreement with the executive committee of the university trustees. Last week Fay Jones, a student of the university was dismissed by the faculty. The father protested to the faculty in vain and then carried the matter before the executive committee, which yesterday reversed the faculty's decision. The faculty had a meeting and resolved to resign if the committee would not withdraw its decision. The president's absence at Omaha attending the conference, makes the state of affairs very critical. Today the committee will hold another meeting.

A ONE MAN LYNCHING.

A Peculiar Murder and Hanging in Louisiana.

BASTROP, La., May 24.—A most peculiar murder and a most peculiar lynching occurred here Sunday. One man committed the murder and one man did the lynching with the assistance of the murderer. S. C. Brigham, manager of a plantation on Island De Siarad, was shot from ambush by an old negro. The negro then walked to the plantation residence, summoned Colonel Philips, the owner, and told him he had killed Brigham and wanted to be hung for it. Colonel Philips put a rope around the negroes neck, pulled the rope over the limb of a tree, and the negro was soon swinging in a death struggle. It is thought the negro was insane.

RIGHT IN IT.

The Lutherans of Illinois Advised to Support the Democratic Party.

GALENA, Ill., May 24.—The Wisconsin district of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Ohio and other states closed its annual session, which lasted six days, here last evening. The final session was devoted to the consideration of the compulsory education law of Illinois, which led to the issuance of a manifesto, which declares that the republican members of the legislature did not fulfill their promises to aid in effecting the repeal of the law, and closes by saying: "We therefore advise all Lutherans in the state of Illinois to support the democratic party at the next election as far as the state ticket is concerned."

UNINSTRUCTED.

But in Favor of Harrison, Will be the Indian Territory Delegation.

SOUTH MCALESTER, I. T., May 24.—The territorial convention of the republican party was held here yesterday. The delegates elected to the Minneapolis convention were as follows: Ridge Pascol, a full blood Cherokee, who heads the delegates of Taphuge; John S. M. Hammer, of Ardmore. Alternates, J. W. Roberts, of Anderson; F. Genung, of Muskogee. One of the alternates is a negro. The delegates are uninstructed, but are for Harrison.

ELOPERS ARRESTED.

A Theatrical Manager Charged With Theft.

DETROIT, Mich., May 24.—Edward A. Oakes, manager of a theatrical company, who eloped from Pittsburg two weeks ago with Emma Miller, a seventeen-year-old soubrette, was arrested here yesterday. He is charged by the Pittsburg police with taking some of the company's money. The girl was also arrested but was turned over to her mother who resides in Philadelphia and who had traced the couple here.

INTO THE CANAL.

Three Men Went In but Only Two Came Out.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 24.—At 1 o'clock this morning John Brocke, William Mahoney and David Maloney were driving from Manlius to Syracuse. Discovering that they were on the wrong road they attempted to turn around and the horse backed into the canal. Brocke and Mahoney escaped with a wetting, but no trace of Maloney could be found save his hat which was found about four feet from where the buggy went into the canal.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Validity of the Mississippi Constitution Established.

JACKSON, Miss., May 24.—Ever since since the adoption and putting into force of the Mississippi constitution of 1890, its validity has been questioned for the reason that it was not submitted to the people for ratification, which it was claimed this necessary under the old constitution. The supreme court yesterday settled the point, holding that the constitutional convention was the embodiment of the sovereignits of the people and that it was competent for it to put into effect the new constitution without submission to be voted on. This view was taken by the judiciary committee of the convention during its session, and the report made by Judge Wiley P. Harris, chairman, to the convention has been sought after by lawyers and courts from all parts of the Union.

TARIFF MATTERS

Will Not Take a Prominent Position in the Proceedings of Congress for Some Time.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The prospects for further tariff legislation in this congress is not the most propitious, judged by a discussion on the subject that took place at a meeting of the senate committee on finance today. The probabilities of taking up at an early day one or more of the tariff bills passed by the house were talked over informally, but no definite information was given as to the probable policy of the committee, or rather the republican majority, in the matter. The impression left by the short discussion was that if the committee does report the free wool bill or some other tariff measure, it will not do so for several weeks. The resolutions introduced yesterday by Senator Vest, directing the discharge of the finance committee from the further consideration of the free wool bill, was not presented, as generally supposed, to bring the bill before the senate for action, but merely to allow Mr. Vest and other democratic senators an opportunity of making speeches on the tarrif, so that the democratic senators do not seem very hopeful of securing any tariff legislation without the aid of the finance committee, which is, of course, opposed to the enactment of measures placing articles on the free list.

DOING GRAND WORK.

The Borton Cure for Drunkenness at Warsaw Visited.

While at Warsaw last Saturday afternoon THE SENTINEL representative paid a visit to the Borton cure for drunkenness established there. Mr. W. P. Cooper, formerly of this city, is the secretary of the institution, and Messrs F. F. Varnelle and W. E. Mossman are interested in it as proprietors.

The cure is pleasantly situated in large buildings admirably adapted for the purpose, near the center of the city, and on a hill from which a spring of singularly healthful water is constantly flowing. The location is a magnificent one, for in the rear and on the south side are large yards, while near to it are a number of residences at which the patients can secure board.

The buildings are heated by steam, baths are provided, club rooms and places of entertainment are at hand, and everything is arranged for the comfort and pleasure of the guests during their stay.

Warsaw is a beautiful city of nearly 1,000 inhabitants. Three pretty lakes touch the edges of the town, and neat cottages line their shores. Patients go and come as they please, and spend their time in such relaxation as best suits them, being only required to present themselves at the office of Dr. Borton four times each day for treatment. About three weeks are necessary to effect a cure, and after the first few days the time is pleasantly spent and the patient has no desire whatever to touch liquor, although he finds it in the rooms of the institution, and can help himself to it if he so desires. From the beginning each patient is given all the liquor he wants. He can get supplies at the saloons up-town, though this is forbidden. But after the fourth day no man wants liquor, yet the quitting is unattended with any pain.

There are now some thirty or forty patients at the place, and many have been turned away oured. Several Fort Wayne men are now at the cure for the treatment. These THE SENTINEL met and all were found getting along nicely.

Dr. Carl Proegler, of this city, our county physician, who went to the institution about three weeks ago, was visited and desired to bear testimony to the efficacy of the treatment.

"I was a hard drinker," he said, "and had been so for years. It was ruining my practice and ruining me. Finally I made up my mind that if I didn't kill whisky it would kill me and so I came to the cure. The treatment is a grand success. Under it I have not tasted a glass of liquor since I came here, although liquor can be got and I pass saloons every day. Every desire to taste the stuff has been removed and I shall return to Fort Wayne Thursday confident in the belief that I will never fall back into the liquor habit again."

Such, too, is the testimony of the other patients and THE SENTINEL left the institution satisfied that the Borton cure is doing a grand work for our intemperate men.

There was a "kickers" meeting at the city engineer's office last evening to hear remonstrances against certain improvements. But one remonstrance was presented, that of grading the alley between Creighton avenue and DeWald street, from Fairfield avenue to Shawnee Run. The faculty of the medical department of Taylor university, the only medical college in the city, say that when the old Fort Wayne medical college disbanded several years ago 250 old diplomas of the institution were thrown away as waste. This waste was stolen from the hallway and ever since that time Fort Wayne college diplomas have been sold for various sums in Germany as well as in this country. The diplomas in no way affect the present medical college in this city, although they cause the board of trustees great annoyance. Efforts have been made in vain to locate the peddler of these sheepskins.

"Abraham Lincoln and Men of War Times" is the title of a work of which the veteran journalist, Col. A. K. McClure, editor-in-chief of the Philadelphia Times, is the author. The book is not a biography of Lincoln, nor is it a history of the civil war, but it presents a series of pictures of Lincoln in his relation to the great events of his time and to the distinguished men who surrounded him, from the point of view of an experienced observer who was closely associated with the political movement of the day, and was frequently called into the confidential councils of the president. Mr. McClure records in this book only those things of which he had personal knowledge and he gives personal recollections of Lincoln, such as have not been presented before. He is a vigorous, forcible writer and the work is one full of interest.

DIRTY DAGOS.

The Fellows Proving a Nuisance and the Officers Hold Them—Six Hunched at Court Next.

Ever since the early part of last winter bands of Turks, Arabs and Italians have been in the city peddling goods of various kinds throughout the city and country.

The fellows, with their women, rent rooms, where they live in the most filthy manner and prove nuisances of the worst character to the people who reside in the neighborhood where these dagos have squatted.

Several weeks ago a party of them rented rooms on Water street. Here the people became so disgusted with their filthy habits and vulgar manner of living that one Sunday some young men resided them and attempted to drive them from the place. A fight ensued and two or three of the Arabs were pretty badly pounded up. The affair got into the courts and the young men who made the attack were fined.

After that the Water street dagos left them quarters and went to a large tenement building on Broadway, near the Pittsburg railroad track. Here they joined other people of their kind located in the building and since then have been living there, the party now numbering some forty or fifty persons. They have no beds or chairs in the house and eat and sleep on the floor, never cleaning up and living in the most filthy manner.

The place has become offensive to the neighbors and passers-by and several times lately the dagos have been arrested for committing nuisance and fined, but as they make considerable money, they pay their fines and go on with their dirty style of living.

Yesterday the outrages of two of the dagos, Alex Mickel and Joe Goze, became so disgusting that they were arrested for committing a nuisance, taken before Justice Wilkinson and fined $5 and costs each, $10 in all. This they paid. The neighbors testified as to their vulgar, filthy actions, and said that they undressed at night with lights burning and without pulling down their window blinds.

The people living out on Broadway say they will not rest or cease prosecution until these dagos are driven from the city.

The Broadway building in which these Turks, Arabs and Italians are living emits odors that are terribly nauseating and the people living near there say the dagos are a nuisance which should not be tolerated in any community.

Alexander P. Manor, Sunday afternoon, while standing near the corner of Calhoun and Superior streets, it is said, pulled a revolver and fired a shot at Allen Smith and his father. The bullet passed between them missing both men only by an inch. The cause of the alleged shooting is unknown. Last evening Constable Hamel placed Manor under arrest on the charge of assault and battery with intent to commit murder. The prisoner was taken before Squire Ryan and placed under bonds.

Smith Wagner, who a few weeks ago struck Lintz, the china store proprietor, in the hallway of his residence, made another unwarranted assault upon a citizen yesterday. He struck Acker Rice of the East Main street concert hall a most brutal blow, inflicting a very severe wound. Papers were issued for Warner's arrest.

With papers of replevin issued by Squire Ryan, the fine St. Bernard dog owned by Earl Palmer, of the National Express company, has been recovered by Constable Harrod. The animal has been missing for a long time and was found in possession of a man living on the east side.

A grand time was had by all participants.

At the Baptist church last evening Londin's Original Fisk Jubilee singers gave a concert that was a rare musical treat to the large and appreciative audience in attendance. The company is composed of the finest voices that can be procured among the colored vocalists of the country. The manager and musical director, F. J. Loudin, delivered a short address between the first and second parts of the program. Among other things he mentioned that his company had sung in his city either in 1879 or 1880 and since that time they had made a tour around the world, singing in all the principal cities of the globe. He also said that during his entire journey he and his troupe were never refused admission to a hotel until they had returned home to their own country—the land of the free and the home of the brave. When they stopped at the Randall yesterday the proprietor kindly informed them that the waiter girls had served notice on him that if he allowed them to enter the dining room and be served they would all strike. He said this was his first experience in this line and it grieved him very much. He had traveled for about thirty years and this was the first time the waiter girls had threatened to strike on their account. The proprietor of the hotel asked them to remain and he would suffer the consequence, but rather than have any trouble they went to the Aldine, where they were accommodated.

Arrangements for the Funeral of Hon. F. P. Randall—Meeting of Underwriters—The Deaths.

The Fort Wayne Board of Underwriters of which the late Hon. F. P. Randall was president was held this morning in the office of the deceased on Clinton street. Ex Mayor Harding presided and C. E. Graves acted as secretary. It was decided to attend the funeral in a body and to close all the insurance offices between the hours of 3 to 5 p. m. on the day of the funeral. The secretary was instructed to draw up resolutions, expressive of the sorrow of the association by the loss of its honored president and to frame words of condolence as coming from the organization to the bereaved family.

Resolutions were passed as follows:

WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly father to take from us by death our friend and companion, the Hon. F. P. Randall, and

WHEREAS, The board of underwriters of this city, of which he was president and esteemed member, have assembled to express our high regard for his many virtues and our profound sorrow for the loss of our highly esteemed associate therefore,

Resolved, That in his death this board has lost one of its most honored and distinguished members, our city one of its most worthy and cherished citizens, and his family a kind, amiable and indulgent father and companion in his several relations in life. Be enjoyed that respect of this community to which the excellence of his character so eminently entitled him. His simplicity of manners, his honesty of purpose, his kindness of disposition never failed to surround him with a host of true and ardent friends in life, and left him without a single enemy in death. Inflexible integrity was one of his most prominent traits of character. In his intercourse with the world the justice, propriety and benevolence of his conduct rendered him a model worthy of imitation. Kind and forbearing himself he had a sedulous regard to the feelings of others. His practical good sense enabled him to meet any emergency with calmness and self control. The loss of such a man is not alone to relations and friends, but equally so to the city and community in which most of his active life has been spent. Thousands of our citizens feel their loss and their hearts are full of sorrow that the hand of death has laid low one of the purest and best of men.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to his family our profound sympathy in this hour of their deep affliction.

Resolved, That the secretary of this board place upon record the proceedings of this meeting and that he furnish the family with a copy and that he also furnish the city papers with a copy and said papers are hereby respectfully requested to publish the same.

JERRY SIMPSON.

He Makes a Political Speech on Virginia Soil.

WARRENTON, Va., May 24.—A big crowd of members of the farmer's alliance thronged the streets yesterday in spite of the fitful clouds and sunshine, for they gathered to hear Congressman Jerry Simpson in his first appearance in the haunts of Virginia democracy. He handled both democratic and republican principles without gloves. This provoked a man in the audience, who continually interrupted the speaker. At last Jerry called out: "If that gentleman does not keep quiet I'll pull off my socks and pitch into him." The speaker advocated unlimited coinage, upheld the sub-treasury scheme, explaining that thirteen out of every 1,000 owned 7 per cent of the property of the country. He said banking and other business absorbed the farmer's labor, and that the government should control the telegraphs and railroads. He said: "You can't reform the tariff any more than you can reform hell," and that was for free trade, not tariff reform. Delegates were appointed to the Richmond convention, which elects delegates to the Omaha convention. They were instructed to put up a ... president, but no name was mentioned.

Newspaper men of experience will endorse this reply. The reporter who is accustomed to using shorthand will generally make the mistake of taking too copious notes, from which he afterward has difficulty to select what is important enough for publication. On the other hand the reporter who depends only on longhand notes knows how to pick out the essential words, incidents or facts as they come to him, and the result is a condensed array of notes from which a succinct yet comprehensive story is quickly written.

THE SCARLET LETTER.

By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE.

CHAPTER VII.

THE LEECH

Under the appellation of Roger Chillingworth, the reader will remember, was hidden another name, which its former wearer had resolved should never more be spoken. It has been related how, in the crowd that witnessed Hester Prynne's ignominious exposure, stood a man, elderly, travel worn, who, just emerging from the perilous wilderness, beheld the woman, in whom he hoped to find embodied the warmth and cheerfulness of home, set up as a type of sin before the people. Her matronly fame was trodden under all men's feet. Infamy was building around her in the public market place. For her kindred, should the tidings ever reach them, and for the companions of her unspotted life there remained nothing but the contagion of her disgrace, which would not fail to be distributed in strict accordance and proportion with the intimacy and sacredness of their previous relationship.

Then why—since the choice was with himself—should the individual, whose connection with the fallen woman had been the most intimate and sacred of them all, come forward to vindicate his claim to an inheritance so little desirable? He resolved not to be published beside her on her pedestal of shame. Unknown to all but Hester Prynne, and possessing the lock and key of her silence, he chose to withdraw his name from the roll of mankind, and, as regarded his former ties and interests, to vanish out of life as completely as if he indeed lay at the bottom of the ocean, whither rumor had long ago consigned him. This purpose once effected, new interests would immediately spring up, and likewise a new purpose; dark, it is true, if not guilty, but of force enough to engage the full strength of his faculties.

In pursuance of this resolve he took up his residence in the Puritan town, as Roger Chillingworth, without other introduction than the learning and intelligence of which he possessed more than a common measure. As his studies at a previous period of his life had made him extensively acquainted with the modern science of the day, it was as a physician that he presented himself, and as such was cordially received. Skillful men of the medical and chirurgical profession were of rare occurrence in the colony.

* * *

His form grew emaciated; his voice, though still rich and sweet, had a certain melancholy prophecy of decay in it. He was often observed to use many slight alarm or other sudden accident to put his hand over his heart, with first a flush and then a paleness, indicative of pain.

Such was the young clergyman's condition, and so imminent the prospect that his dawning light would be extinguished, all untimely, when Roger Chillingworth came into his patient to the town. His first entry on the scene, few people could tell whence, dropping down, as it were, out of the sky or starting from the nether earth, had an aspect of mystery which was easily heightened to the miraculous. He was now known to be a man of skill. It was observed that he gathered herbs and the blossoms of wild flowers, and dug up roots and plucked off twigs from the forest trees, like one acquainted with hidden virtues in what was valueless to common eyes.

He was heard to speak of Sir Kenelm Digby and other famous men—whose scientific attainments were esteemed hardly less than supernatural—as having been his correspondents or associates. Why, with such rank in the learned world, had he come hither? What could he, whose sphere was in great cities, be seeking in the wilderness? In answer to this query a rumor gained ground—and, however absurd, was entertained by some very sensible people—that heaven had wrought an absolute miracle by transporting an eminent doctor of physic from a German university bodily through the air and setting him down at the door of Mr. Dimmesdale's study! Individuals of wiser faith, indeed, who knew that heaven promotes its purposes without aiming at the stage effect of what is called miraculous interposition, were inclined to see a providential hand in Roger Chillingworth's so opportune arrival.

This idea was countenanced by the strong interest which the physician ever manifested in the young clergyman; he attached himself to him as a parishioner, and sought to win a friendly regard and confidence from his naturally reserved sensibility. He expressed great alarm at his pastor's state of health, but was anxious to attempt the cure, and, if requisite, to summon counsel more competent to a favorable result. The elders, the deacons, the motherly dames and the young and fair maidens of Mr. Dimmesdale's flock were alike importunate that he should make trial of the physician's frankly offered skill. Mr. Dimmesdale gently repelled their entreaties.

"I need no medicine," said he.

But how could the young minister say so when, with every successive Sabbath, his cheek was paler and thinner and his voice more tremulous than before—when it had now become a constant habit, rather than a casual gesture, to press his hand upon his heart? Was he conscious of his danger? Did he wish to die? These questions were solemnly propounded to Mr. Dimmesdale by the elder ministers of Boston and the deacons of his church, who, tone their own phrase, "dealt with him" on the sin of rejecting the aid which providence so manifestly held out. He listened in silence and finally promised to confer with the physician.

"Were it God's will," said the Reverend Mr. Dimmesdale, when, in fulfillment of this pledge, he requested old Roger Chillingworth's professional advice, "I could be well content that my labors, and my sorrows, and my sins, and my pardon, should be buried with me, and that earthly of them be buried in my grave and the spiritual go with me to my eternal state, rather than that you should put your skill to the proof in my behalf."

"Ah," replied Roger Chillingworth, with that quietness which, whether imposed or natural, marked all his deportment, "it is thus with the young clergyman is apt to speak. Youthful men, not having taken a deep root, give up their hold of life so easily! And saintly men, who walk with God on earth, would fain be away to walk with him on the golden pavements of the New Jerusalem."

"Nay," rejoined the young minister, putting his hand to his heart, with a flush of pain flitting over his brow, "were I worthier to walk there I could be better content to toil here."

"Good men ever interpret themselves too meanly," said the physician.

In this manner the mysterious old Roger Chillingworth became the medical adviser of the Reverend Mr. Dimmesdale. As not only the disease interested the physician, but he was strongly moved to look into the character and qualities of the patient, these two men, so different in age, came gradually to spend much time together. For the sake of the minister's health and to enable the leech to gather plants from healing balm in them, they took long walks on the seashore or in the forest, mingling various talk with the plash and murmur of the waves, and the solemn wind anthem among the trees. Often, like wise, was the guest of the other in the place of study and retirement.

Thus Roger Chillingworth continued his patient and watchful, both as he saw him in his ordinary life, keeping an accustomed pathway in the range of thoughts familiar to him, and as he appeared when thrown amid other moral scenery, the novelty of which might call out some thing new to the surface of his character. He deemed it essential, it would seem, to know the exact science attending to the good or evil. Wherever there is a heart and an intellect the diseases of the physical frame are tinged with the peculiarities of these. In Arthur Dimmesdale the thought and imagination were so active and sensibility so intense that the bodily infirmity would be likely to have its groundwork there. So Roger Chillingworth—the man of skill, the kind and friendly physician—strove to go deep into his patient's bosom, delving among his principles, prying into his recollections and probing everything with a cautious touch, like a treasure seeker in a dark cavern.

* * *

After a time, at a hint from Roger Chillingworth, the friendly Mr. Dimmesdale built for him an observatory by which the two were lodged in the same house, so that every chill and flow of the minister's life tide might pass under the eye of his anxious and attached physician. There was much joy throughout the town when this greatly desirable object was attained. It was held to be the best possible measure for the young clergyman's welfare, and, indeed, as often urged by such as felt authorized to do so, he had selected some one of the many blooming damsels, spiritually devoted to him, to become his devoted wife. This latter step, however, there was no present prospect that Arthur Dimmesdale would be prevailed upon to take. He replied to all such suggestions of the kind, as if priestly celibacy were one of his earth level duties, but created no scandal by his own choice. Therefore as Mr. Dimmesdale so evidently was, to all his unsavory moral abuses of modern's board, and cuisine the lifelong chill which must be his lot who seeks to warm himself only at another's fireside, it truly seemed that this sagacious, experienced, benevolent old physician, with his consort of paternal and reverential love for the young pastor, was the very man of all mankind to be constantly within reach of his voice.

The new abode of the two friends was with a plain widow of good social rank, who dwelt in a house standing pretty nearly the site on which the venerable structure of King's chapel has since been built. It had the graveyard, originally Isaac Johnson's home field, on one side, and so was well adapted to call up serious reflections, suited to their respective employments, in both minister and man of physic. The motherly care of the good widow was assigned to Mr. Dimmesdale's front apartment, with a sunny exposure, and heavy window curtains to create a monkish shadow when desirable. The walls were hung around with tapestry, said to be from the Gobelin looms, and at all events representing the Scriptural story of David and Bathsheba, and Nathan the Prophet, in colors still undecayed, but which made the fair woman of the scene almost as grimly picturesque as the woe denouncing seer.

Here the pale clergyman piled up his library, rich with parchment bound folios of the fathers, and the lore of rabbis, and monkish erudition, of which Protestant divines, even while they vilified and decried that class of writers, were yet constrained often to avail themselves. On the other side of the house old Roger Chillingworth arranged his study and laboratory; not such as a modern man of science would reckon even tolerably complete, but provided with a distilling apparatus and the means of compounding drugs and chemicals, which the practiced alchemist knew well how to turn to purpose. With such commodiousness of situation, these two learned persons sat themselves down, each in his own domain, yet familiarly passing from one apartment to the other and bestowing a mutual and not incurious inspection into each other's business.

* * *

CHAPTER VIII.

THE LEECH AND HIS PATIENT.

* * * One day leaning his forehead on his hand and his elbow on the sill of the open window that looked toward the graveyard, he (Arthur Dimmesdale) talked with Roger Chillingworth, while the old man was examining a bundle of unsightly plants.

"Where," asked he, with a look askance at them—for it was the clergyman's peculiarity that he seldom studied at all except in the open air—"where, my kind doctor, did you gather those herbs with such a dark, flabby leaf?"

"Even in the graveyard here at hand," answered the physician, continuing his employment. "They are new to me. I found them growing on a grave which bore no tombstone or other memorial of the dead man save these ugly weeds that have taken upon themselves to keep him in remembrance. They grew out of his heart, and typify, it may be, some hideous secret that was buried with him, and which he had done better to confess during his lifetime."

"Perchance," said Mr. Dimmesdale, "he earnestly desired it, but could not."

"And wherefore?" rejoined the physician. "Wherefore not, since all the powers of nature call so earnestly for the confession of sin that these black weeds have sprung up out of a buried heart to make manifest an unspoken crime?"

"That, good sir, is but a fantasy of yours," replied the minister. "Theocan be, if I forbode aright, no power, short of the divine mercy, to disclose, whether by uttered words or by type or emblem, the secrets that may be buried with a human heart. The heart must ever, while it beats, hide its own secrets, and perforce hold them until the day when all hidden things shall be revealed. Nor have I so read or interpreted Holy Writ as to understand that the disclosure of human thoughts and deeds, then to be made, is intended as a part of the retribution. That, surely, were a shallow view of it. Nor, in the case of many, unless I greatly err, are meant merely to promote the intellectual satisfaction of all intelligent beings, who will stand waiting on that day to see the dark problem of this life made plain. A knowledge of men's hearts will be needful to the completest solution of that problem. And I conceive, moreover, that the hearts holding such miserable secrets as you speak of will yield them up at that last day, not with reluctance, but with a joy unutterable."

"Then why not reveal them here?" asked Roger Chillingworth, glancing quietly aside at the minister. "Why should not the guilty make their own hearts known?"

"They sometimes do," said the clergyman, grasping hard at his breast as if afflicted with an importunate throb of pain. "Many, many a poor soul hath gone its way, finding the smile of human kindness and love turned into scorn, and the world's full heart into an altar for the sacrifice of self torture; but never—unless when fortified by some deep principle—have they disclosed the secret of their sin. Some men, indeed, there are, who have striven so obstinately to close their own consciousness against the knowledge that others cherish concerning them, that they have literally died of the unrevealed secret as of a disease. But, oftener, the transgressor hath given vent, even during his lifetime, to a part of the secret, in order to ease the agony of his soul. Sometimes, too, a dread power seems to suck out the hidden sin, as with a magnet or a cupping glass. Be it as it may, the secret of sin is generally told, or betrayed, at last, and the disclosure is made sometimes by the guilty himself, sometimes by his partner in guilt, sometimes by a third person, and sometimes by circumstances that seem accidental. But, in every instance, it is made in accordance with an inherent and innate necessity of human nature, and in conformity with a dispensation of providence which has implanted in every human breast a conscience, though a conscience may be seared."

"Then, to speak more plainly," continued the physician, "and I crave pardon, sir, should it seem to require pardon—for this needful plainness of my speech. Let me ask—as your friend—as one having charge, under Providence, of your life and physical well being—hath all the operation of this disorder been fairly laid open and ransomed to me?"

"How can any question," asked the minister "surely, a wise child's play to call in a physician and then hide the ware?"

THE EAST CAR SHOPS.

What a Sentinel Reporter Saw and the People He Met Out There—Other Railway News.

Every one of THE SENTINEL readers has heard of the "east car shops" and sometime a favored few—have even visited that hive of industry, but the majority of our citizens do not properly realize the importance and magnitude of this branch of the great Fort Wayne shops Hence, a brief description of the works may be interesting.

The "east car shops," as that part of the Pennsylvania's works where passenger and freight cars are constructed and repaired is called, is situated on the north side of the company's tracks about one-third of a mile east of Walton avenue

In accordance with an invitation from James A. Graham, the master car builder, a SENTINEL reporter yesterday afternoon paid those shops a visit, going out there by way of the Wallace street car line as far as Walton avenue and making the rest of the journey on foot. This route was recommended for its safety, but aside from that feature it has no advantage over other routes A less corpulent and timid man than THE SENTINEL reporter, if he wanted to make the trip in one day, would doubtless find it more expeditious to board a freight train and trust to luck in alighting in safety in the yards opposite the car shop.

However, our reporter took the safe route, and he is glad that he did so, for it led him by the yard train dispatcher's office and gave him an opportunity to drop in and chat with the boys awhile. W E Davis, the chief dispatcher, was at Crestline, but his efficient assistant, F. E. Tibbles, was within and courteously gave the reporter an insight into the affairs of that department. Besides Messrs. Davis and Tibbles, there are in the dispatcher's office four clerks: James Haskell, Homer Blakeslee, W. F. Mullahy and John Hill. William Hass and Gordon Evans, freight clerks, and Telegraphers Harry Kroitman and William Ross also have desk room in this office. All the freight crews, including conductors and brakemen, report at this office.

The east yard is one mile in length and has eight tracks. The force consists of two crews - a day and night—of twenty-five men each. The day force is under the foremanship of Theodore Bly, while D. W. Barker looks after the night force. Each yardmaster has an assistant in the persons of W. Robinson and James Morris. The seal clerks are George McMonagal and Joseph Shea, and the callers are Lee Brokaw, Fred Emerick, John Habacher and Elmer Miller.

From Mr. Davis' office the reporter walked down the track to the shops and into Mr. Graham's office. Here he found Chief Clerk C. P. Cherry and his assistants, W. H. Woodruff, T. H. Sinclair, E. L. Hobrock and W. John, busily engaged. Frank Swearingen also has a desk in this room, but that gentleman was out.

Mr. Sinclair chaperoned the reporter over the works, the main building of which is a one-story crescent shaped structure, partly encircling a good sized yard in the center of which is a large turn table operated by steam under the management of Engineer Frank Haynes. Mr. Graham's office is in the south end of the building. Adjoining is the car builders' and repairers' department, under the general foremanship of William Knight, and giving employment to 125 men. This department is capable of turning out seven or eight new cars, besides repairing about thirty-five old ones daily. At present there are three crews of eight men each engaged in making gondola cars. Each crew has two cars under construction at one time and it takes just thirteen hours to complete them.

In the repair department are many passenger, box and gondola cars in various stages of repairs.

Adjoining the car builders' department is the paint shops, under the management of Foreman T. J. Rodabaugh and Assistant Samuel Murphy.

The shop yards are very efficiently presided over by C. Burchard, who has under him forty-five men.

The truck repairers number twenty and are in charge of Foreman J. Klinkenberger, while Martin Gnaw and a force of six men takes care of the lumber yard.

George Swartz is the foreman of the car repairers in the yard and has under him twenty-five men.

Besides the above crews there are forty laberers employed in the shops and yards, all of whom are under Foreman C. S. Hart, making a grand total, including the men in the switch yards, of about 340 persons, or nearly one-third of the entire shop and yard force employed in the Fort Wayne works of the Pennsylvania company.

The Wonderful Success

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier entitles it to your confidence. No other preparation has such a record of cures of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Blood Poisoning, or other blood diseases. To try it is to know its merit Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

For a general family cathartic we confidently recommend Hood's Pills. They should be in every home medicine chest.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Things Worth Remembering.

When you feel a kind of queeness about the stomach it is a sign that your food does not sit well and that you are about to have a fit of indigestion.

When you begin to feel nervous and are unable to sit still comfortably; when your clothes suddenly seem to fit their fit and become too tight in places the fit of indigestion is surely upon you.

When this fit of indigestion is repeated from day to day it finally resolves itself into dyspepsia.

Remember that three to ten of BRANDRETH'S PILLS will cure the worst case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or both, and that a regular course of them, say two every night for a week or ten days, will act as a preventive of either complaint

GREAT FISHING

Done at the Lakes in Kosciusko County—The Big Buffalo Fish.

One of the pleasantest residence towns in Northern Indiana is Pierceton, situated in Kosciusko county on the Pennsylvania railroad, about thirty two miles west of Fort Wayne and eight miles from Warsaw, famous for its beautiful lakes and summer resort attractions.

It is an old town and has probably seen its most prosperous days, for some years ago it was quite a manufacturing center and was a busy place, rivaling Warsaw, its county seat, in this respect The building of new east and west railroads within a few miles of it was a bar to its progress, and for some years it has been at a standstill as far as advancement in population and business is concerned.

It still remains, however, a thriving inland town. Its business men are active and progressive and its population are prosperous. Surrounded by the very best farming land in the state, Pierceton will always be the second town in Kosciusko county and will be in advance of her rivals on the Nickel Plate, which have sprung up to the south of her within the last dozen years. It is not, however, of Pierceton's commercial standing that I purpose in this article to write, and what has been said is but an introductory to some things about the lakes around this quaint old town that may be of interest to THE SENTINEL readers who love to read about fish and fishing, for as a fishing resort the country round about Pierceton has no equal in the state.

All over that part of Kosciusko county, and within eight or ten miles of the town, are lakes, some large and some small, and all are crowded with fish. At Warsaw are the Center, Pike and Eagle lakes. Nine Mile lake, in the northeastern part of the county, is the largest, being five miles long and two miles wide Then there are Tippecanoe, Little Eagle, Barbee, Hoffman, Beaver Dam, Silver, Boyalston, Ridinger, Palestine, Yellow Creek, Waldo, and many smaller lakes scattered a few miles apart in different parts of the county. Tippecanoe lake, twelve miles from Warsaw, and not very far from Pierceton, is next in size to Nine Mile lake, and it is one of the most famous fishing resorts of the county.

The heavy rains of a few weeks ago caused Tippecanoe to overflow its banks, and when the waters receded fish by the thousand were left imprisoned on the dry land by fences, barns and other buildings These were captured by the farmers, and hauled by wagon loads to Warsaw and Pierceton, where they were sold very cheap

Pierceton's lake is Barbee's lake, situated about six miles north of the town. It covers some 3,000 acres of land, and is a series of three or four lakes all united. It was here that THE SENTINEL representative, off on a day's recreation, visited one day last week, in company with L. D. Nichols, the railroad agent of the Pennsylvania company at Pierceton. It is a grand fishing place, and is famous for the big catches made there. As a consequence, it is visited by parties far and near, who come to spend a few days at the picatorial sport. The day I was there a party from Anderson were spending a week at the lake. They were the guests of the Pierceton Sporting club, and were registered on my note book as follows: J. F. McClure, editor; J. H. Terhune, mayor; W. A. Fulton, city treasurer; R. P. Grimes, merchant; C K. McCulloch, banker; Rolla Harris, commercial traveler; C. B. Gerrard, real estate and insurance. They were a jovial set of fellows, and caught several wagon loads of fish.

The Pierceton Sporting club is composed of some of Pierceton's representative business men, among them being: E. M. Radcliffe, Dr. C. R. Long, Gus Froebley, H. D. Heagy, Harry Humrichouser, L. D. Nichols, Robert Humphrey, Dr. Johnson, Daniel Strauss, John Froehley, Alex Marshman, Cyrus Trump and others. They have two large club houses at Barbee's lake and have everything arranged for cooking, sleeping, etc, so that their members or their guests can live in a very comfortable way while at the lake.

One need not worry about not being able to catch fish at Barbee lake. If he takes a boat at the club house and with his companion, rows to some part of the lake, as near or as far from the shore as he likes The trout line and the pole and line can both be used and the hook baited with either the angle worm or the minnow The best drifts about and the fisherman is soon kept busy with his sport as he hauls out every few moments from the clear waters bass, perch or other fish of various lengths and sizes It is rare sport and during the week he is at the lake he can send kegs of fish home to his friends The best time to fish is early in the morning or in the evening, for then the fish are hungry and bite better than they do during the middle part of the day, which the fishermen generally spend in reading, games or other sorts of pastime

One of the biggest fish caught at the Barbee lakes in Kosciusko county is the buffalo fish. These grow to immense size and are frequently found as long as a man and weighing 500 pounds or more During the recent high waters, I am told several of these fish were caught, lodged in barns and houses, from eight to ten feet in length They are sometimes caught with hook and line, but more frequently by gigging and spearing The latter method of fishing is great sport and is often at done at night. Sailing out into the lakes with a boat and lighted torch, a long spear with prongs is used The buffalo fish seems not to care for the approach of the boat and swims around slowly towards the top of the water. When the fisherman is onto it the lighted torch and the clear water reveals its whereabouts and the spear is sent through the big fish's body and it is hauled into the boat The meat of the buffalo fish is rather rank, but when parboiled makes a palatable dish. Large numbers are caught and the lakes seem to be full of them, but they are not the favorites that the smaller fish are

The Anderson crowd at Barbee lake wanted to stuff the sea serpent story down THE SENTINEL representatives. They said they had been out on the lake the night before when a monster, twenty or thirty feet long and horrible in appearance, attacked them and overturned the boat in which Mayor Terhune and Editor McClure were, but while eating supper in the club house I observed in one corner a keg labeled "Old Rye," consequently I am inclined to doubt their nicely told story.

Linton claims to be the biggest and the busiest town in Greene county.

To Stay or to be Stain. Which?

To attack the dragon of disease and assimilate him before his deadly claws grow, or to allow him to attain dominion unjustly and destroy us—that is the question of paramount importance to all afflicted with organic diseases. Among these, disorders of the kidneys and bladder are of the fatal order if unrestrained at the outset. Their growth is gradual, their culmination death. Bright's disease, ordinary nephritis, diabetes, calculus of the bladder, gravel, suppression of the secretion, cannot be tempered with or disregarded safely. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a powerful preventive of these diseases. It regulates the pulse, without excitation to the renal organs, and thus averts strangury, one of the symptoms in common with the rest of the system. It infuses, too, vigor and regularity into the stomach, bowels and liver, successfully combating malaria and rheumatism, and is a preeminently fine tonic for the aged, the enfeebled and the convalescent

THE FASHIONS!

Who dictates the fashions? Not we, nor any other Merchant—THAT'S WORTH REMEMBERING. Most of our fashions are of French and English importation, and no sooner do they make their appearance and gain a foothold, than they find apt and faithful illustration in the ready-to-wear clothing that goes on our counters. Some dealers would have you believe that THEY dictate fashions. The smaller the dealer the larger the dictation usually, and the greater the nonsense.

As near as it is possible, we follow closely the universal law of fashions, and our clothing is abreast of and in harmony with its mandates.

We see one dealer advertising that "Double-Breasted Suits are out of date" while, as a matter of fact, they are in the zenith of their popularity. That dealer went shy on double-breasted suits and he's trying to hedge, but it won't do; the double-breasted idea has "caught on"—even for boys and little boys' suits—and the public will go where they can get them. As usual, they'll have to come to us to see a comprehensive assortment. In men's suits we are showing some very handsome styles in homespuns, fancy cheviots, cassimeres and hopsacks and in boys' suits the variety is exhaustive. If you are in the habit of having your clothes made to order, let us suggest that before you place your order this season you see these ready-to-wear suits of ours. They're correct in all the little tailoring details, beautifully made and sensibly trimmed. We have an idea you'll consider them good enough, and the saving of $10 or $15 will not be an objectionable feature. IT'S WORTH THE EXPERIMENT ANYWAY.

Our Boys' Clothing

Department is the delight of all mothers who take a pride in dressing their boys elegantly and in good taste at a moderate cost. We show more new novelties in boys' wear than all the clothiers in Fort Wayne combined. Base Ball Outfit goes FREE with every suit.

First Communion Suits!
